Every month I draw a minor character for the official Dragon Ball website. There's an almost infinite number of characters to choose from, so I always have fun with it. The art on this page is usually some kind of self-portrait, but sometimes we use one of those minor-character drawings instead.

STORY THUS FAR

A long, long time ago, Son Goku left on a journey in search of the legendary Dragon Balls—a set of seven balls that, when gathered, would summon the dragon Shenlong to grant any wish. After a great adventure, he collects them all. Later, he becomes the apprentice of Kame-Sen'nin, fights a number of vicious enemies, defeats the great Majin Boo and restores peace on Earth. Some time passes, and then Lord Beerus, the God of Destruction, suddenly awakens and sets out in search of the Super Saiyan God. Goku, by becoming the Super Saiyan God, manages to stop Beerus from destroying the Earth and starts training under him with Vegeta. After some time, the ancient villain Moro escapes from the Galactic Prison. After regaining his youth on New Namek, Moro travels to Earth, where he absorbs the abilities of Seven-Three and the Angel Merus. He's finally defeated when Goku achieves Ultra Instinct. Meanwhile, far away on Planet Cereal, the last surviving Cerealian, Granolah, uses the Dragon Balls from Planet Cereal to become the greatest warrior in the universe, all in the hopes of getting revenge on Freeza. However, Goku and Vegeta are tricked by the Heeters into thinking that Granolah is a powerful villain, and the two confront him on Planet Cereal!

TO BE CONTINUED!

V: Who's your favorite new character from this story arc?

Toyo: It's gotta be Granolah himself, since he's the main character of the Granolah the Survivor arc. I also like Elec from the Heeters. His whole vibe makes it really clear he's a villain.

V: A villain for the modern ages, yes. Not one who exerts control via terror, but a clever, scheming man who uses money and influence instead. But you struggled with the designs for the Heeters quartet, right?

Toyo: Toriyama Sensei rejected my designs for them three or four times, and I was almost ready to give up when we finally arrived at the current designs.

V: Toriyama Sensei puts genuine thought into his critiques. That must feel wonderful.

V: One of Toriyama Sensei's designs was the Sugarians, as explained at the end of volume 16. His tweaks ended up making them absolutely adorable.

Toyo: I submitted two different designs for those guys, and he said, "Their eyes are too creepy." Ha ha!

V: Their cute designs have that distinct Toriyama Sensei feel to them, especially since the individuals aren't given their own names.

Toyo: His cute characters are always so iconic. It's amazing how you can immediately recognize the characters designed by Toriyama Sensei.

V: Finally, any hints about upcoming story developments?

Toyo: There's a lot I can't reveal at this stage, but rest assured that we've got big surprises in store, so stay tuned!

TOYOTARO
Dragon Ball Super Editor: Victory Uchida
Toyotarou Sensei

There's some territory where I dare not tread.

Victory Uchida (V for short): Granolah, as a character, was originally your idea, right, Toyo?

Toyotarou Sensei (Toyo for short): Compared to many of my ideas for characters, Granolah came about because the concept of someone with a fateful connection to the Saiyans was really appealing. As for expanding on his story, that was something you and I came up with together and then pitched to Toriyama Sensei.

V: How does it feel when you submit an idea to Toriyama Sensei and he sends back a full-on original character design?

Toyo: With characters like the Heeters, Toriyama Sensei would make tweaks and additions of his own. I never expect anything more than a "yes" or "no" in response to my character ideas, but he goes above and beyond by making an effort to understand what I'm trying to convey. It's always a moving experience when he says, "Here's how to make these designs more fun," and hands back the material with those modifications. It ends up being 100–200 times more awesome than whatever I had come up with, which is pretty amazing.

V: Right. He added a number of elements, like the Namekian, the new Dragon Balls, the new dragon, and so on. He has this way of taking your ideas and adding touches to give them more of a Dragon Ball Super feel. Truly moving.

Toyo: There's some territory where I dare not tread. Introducing a new set of Dragon Balls is a good example of that, so I'm grateful to Toriyama Sensei for stepping in and bringing those into the story.

V: You were in charge of designing Granolah, right?

Toyo: I came up with the "last survivor of his people" aspect, but it was Toriyama Sensei who suggested that while the Cerealians shouldn't necessarily be a tribe of hardcore warriors, they should still be somewhat militant. That led me to the finish line—the conclusion that they should be snipers. The concept of a tribe of snipers then led me to the goggles idea for locking on to targets. Cool, right? As for the rest of Granolah's outfit, we're talking about a tribe that was wiped out forty years ago, so even though he's an alien, I wanted an old-fashioned look, with steampunk-ish elements to it.
